TESTIMONIALS

The summers that I have spent at Lincoln are individually and collectively some of the greatest experiences that I have ever had. I got the chance to live, work, and challenge myself in such an incredible environment with a wonderfully diverse mixture of people. I was able to completely let go, be myself and this has resulted in me making lifelong friendships with those who have similarly awesome memories! Without a doubt it was one of the hardest jobs I've ever done, but it certainly delivered the greatest satisfaction.

Phil Joy, UK - Former Lincoln staff member

"Working at camp whip was one of the best decisions I ever made. Not only did it introduce me to some of my closest friends, it also helped me grow as a person. Working at whip strengthened my confidence as a leader, taught me the importance of safety, and the ability to work with a variety of different people, all skills and stories I described when applying for full time jobs. On top of all that, I was able to go on some insanely cool trips in the Adirondack mountains and build relationships with a really incredible group of campers.

Erin Coyne, USA - Whippoorwill staff member

Working at camp is a fantastic experience because it allows you to find a perfect balance between preserving carefree childhood summers while also encouraging you to grow into new and mature responsibilities and experiences. A summer working at camp is not only rewarding professionally, it provides a unique context to get to know a community intimately and wholly that will remain with you for a lifetime.

Danny Hickey, USA - Lincoln staff member

Working at North Country Camps is more than just a summer job. Throughout my years at camp, I have gained rich, indelible experiences — leading wilderness expeditions deep in the Adirondack Park, watching colorful sunsets on Augur Lake, sitting by the fire surrounded by the whole camp community — and forged incredible, lasting friendships that span across countries and years. When I think of the most influential thing in my life, my thoughts always turn to NCC. Each magical moment contributes to the vibrant tapestry of every single summer, which in turn has shaped who I am as a person. North Country Camps is more than just a summer job... it's home
